5

10

15

20

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

disclosed that is system reticle management provides data storage and retrieval of data associated with each reticle, reticle carrier, and certain system also for the efficient movement attributes and storage of reticles and reticle carriers. The reticle management includes а reticle system management controller, a central reticle database, and one or more reticle stockers that include a stocker controller, and a stocker unit. The reticle stocker database, management controller is coupled to the central reticle database and each of the stocker controllers. stocker controller collects data on the reticles, reticle carriers, or both, that are stored within the associated unit this data in the stocker stores stocker and The reticle management controller retrieves database. the data in each stocker database via the associated data in central controller and stores this stocker In addition, data attributes for the reticle database. system, and the reticle carriers within the system may also be stored in the central reticle database.

25 248256